

- Notes:
1. Too many clicks required to get to information, and in the process, the user gets lost.
  2. It's difficult for the user to click back to just one level above where they are. For example, to look at a different property in the portfolio, they're taken back to the root level of the portfolio and then must click back through to where they want to go.
  3. There are places where new content is populated in a popup window. While this practice isn't bad, there is no consistency with which this is done (for example, clicking from Portfolio --> Projectts-in-Project takes you to the Building section in a new, smaller window..
  4. When looking at each specific property, information isn't grouped together or organized in a consistent manner.

